

POLITICS AND LOVE IN DRAMATIC PLAY

Marjorie Rambeau Is Seen in Difficult Role at Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

SMILES WIN AUDIENCE

Others in "The Unknown
Woman" Have No Chance to Distinguish Themselves.

"The Unknown Woman"—At Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

Willard Mack said after the third act of "The Unknown Woman," in which A. H. Woods presented Marjorie Rambeau last night, that the piece had been taken from the Jewish by the Irish, but that there was no reason why the Irish should claim all the credit for the event of the evening. It would not be possible for the audience to decide without knowing what was Irish and what was Jewish just where the glory lies. But it looked, when the third act had come to an end, as if honors were easy. But there also was the feeling that there were no grounds for any loud boasting from either race.

Miss Rambeau blooming in rather full bloom, indeed is still blond and in her way beautiful to look at. She is smiling and brilliant to the eye, but her play is based on a model popular some years ago and is turgidly melodramatic. This style was indeed added to the dramatic category when the American playwright suddenly saw his duty to correlate the native drama to life. Then the captain of industry succeeded the artist as lover, the candidate for Governor—gosh, how many candidates for that gubernatorial post we have met across the footlights—also took on sentimental stature and altogether supplanted the indifferent and more or less ex-patriated millionaire as the hero of the street and storm of political struggle. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Characters in the Play.

All the personnel of this type of stage romance wandered about the boards of Maxine Elliott's Theatre last night. The overwhelmingly ambitious politician who landed the Governorship and neglected the loving wife who had lost her baby but still had a soft spot in her heart for the young neglected Attorney. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Her Smile Wins Audience.

Miss Rambeau could not, of course, be in such surroundings the ray of burning sunshine that she resembled. She had to be "emotional" and dramatic when she is most charming in her lighter moods. Experience of her talents seems to show that she is at her best either in the portrayal of strongly marked roles or in the lighter phases of the drama. She had, of course, to speak the

DIED.

BURT.—On Saturday, November 9, 1919, in the seventieth year of his age, George Hamilton Burt, beloved father of George Frederick Burt.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 149 West 114th street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

DENMAN.—At Elizabeth, N. J., November 8, 1919, Edw. James Denman, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Denman, aged 44 years.

Funeral services at his late residence, 104 Railway avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., Tuesday evening, November 11, 3 o'clock.

DIETRICH.—Sarah Hill, beloved wife of Charles F. Dietrich, suddenly, at Sadler's Hospital, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Services private at convenience of family.

KLAW.—Aron, on November 10, Services at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, Tuesday, 8 P. M.

OSTBERG.—Caroline, mother of Harold C. Hansen, in her eightieth year. Funeral services 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from 2108 Albemarle terrace, Brooklyn.

PEYSEL.—Fanny C., beloved daughter of the late Frederick M. and Molly Peyser, at the Lenox Hill Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral private at her late residence, 137 West Seventy-first street.

ROGERS.—Richard A. F., on November 7, 1919, at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, and sixty-sixth street.

In Memoriam.

BRATLEY.—To the cherished memory of Mary Elizabeth Bratley, who passed away November 11, 1919, to leave her husband, John Bratley, who had entered into the higher life July 23, the same year.

You are all meet at the Master's feet. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

R. B. K. Utica, N. Y.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS.

"CAMPBELL SERVICE" IS NOT CONFINED TO NEW YORK CITY.

A telephone call will bring our representative to you wherever you may be, with the least possible delay.

We have personal representatives almost everywhere.

Call "Columbus 8200" Any Hour, Day or Night.

FRANK E. CAMPBELL

"THE FUNERAL CHURCH"

Broadway at 60th St. 23rd Street at 8th Ave.

Flowers for all occasions. Artistic Funeral Designs our Specialty.

MUSICAL COMEDIES PALACE OFFERING

Pretty Girls Will Be Seen in
Frontal Attack on That
Theatre.

SMILES WIN AUDIENCE

Others in "The Unknown
Woman" Have No Chance to Distinguish Themselves.

"The Unknown Woman"—At Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

Willard Mack said after the third act of "The Unknown Woman," in which A. H. Woods presented Marjorie Rambeau last night, that the piece had been taken from the Jewish by the Irish, but that there was no reason why the Irish should claim all the credit for the event of the evening. It would not be possible for the audience to decide without knowing what was Irish and what was Jewish just where the glory lies. But it looked, when the third act had come to an end, as if honors were easy. But there also was the feeling that there were no grounds for any loud boasting from either race.

Miss Rambeau blooming in rather full bloom, indeed is still blond and in her way beautiful to look at. She is smiling and brilliant to the eye, but her play is based on a model popular some years ago and is turgidly melodramatic. This style was indeed added to the dramatic category when the American playwright suddenly saw his duty to correlate the native drama to life. Then the captain of industry succeeded the artist as lover, the candidate for Governor—gosh, how many candidates for that gubernatorial post we have met across the footlights—also took on sentimental stature and altogether supplanted the indifferent and more or less ex-patriated millionaire as the hero of the street and storm of political struggle. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Characters in the Play.

All the personnel of this type of stage romance wandered about the boards of Maxine Elliott's Theatre last night. The overwhelmingly ambitious politician who landed the Governorship and neglected the loving wife who had lost her baby but still had a soft spot in her heart for the young neglected Attorney. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Her Smile Wins Audience.

Miss Rambeau could not, of course, be in such surroundings the ray of burning sunshine that she resembled. She had to be "emotional" and dramatic when she is most charming in her lighter moods. Experience of her talents seems to show that she is at her best either in the portrayal of strongly marked roles or in the lighter phases of the drama. She had, of course, to speak the

DIED.

BURT.—On Saturday, November 9, 1919, in the seventieth year of his age, George Hamilton Burt, beloved father of George Frederick Burt.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 149 West 114th street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

DENMAN.—At Elizabeth, N. J., November 8, 1919, Edw. James Denman, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Denman, aged 44 years.

Funeral services at his late residence, 104 Railway avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., Tuesday evening, November 11, 3 o'clock.

DIETRICH.—Sarah Hill, beloved wife of Charles F. Dietrich, suddenly, at Sadler's Hospital, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Services private at convenience of family.

KLAW.—Aron, on November 10, Services at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, Tuesday, 8 P. M.

OSTBERG.—Caroline, mother of Harold C. Hansen, in her eightieth year. Funeral services 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from 2108 Albemarle terrace, Brooklyn.

PEYSEL.—Fanny C., beloved daughter of the late Frederick M. and Molly Peyser, at the Lenox Hill Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral private at her late residence, 137 West Seventy-first street.

ROGERS.—Richard A. F., on November 7, 1919, at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, and sixty-sixth street.

In Memoriam.

BRATLEY.—To the cherished memory of Mary Elizabeth Bratley, who passed away November 11, 1919, to leave her husband, John Bratley, who had entered into the higher life July 23, the same year.

You are all meet at the Master's feet. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

R. B. K. Utica, N. Y.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS.

"CAMPBELL SERVICE" IS NOT CONFINED TO NEW YORK CITY.

A telephone call will bring our representative to you wherever you may be, with the least possible delay.

We have personal representatives almost everywhere.

Call "Columbus 8200" Any Hour, Day or Night.

FRANK E. CAMPBELL

"THE FUNERAL CHURCH"

Broadway at 60th St. 23rd Street at 8th Ave.

Flowers for all occasions. Artistic Funeral Designs our Specialty.

MUSICAL COMEDIES PALACE OFFERING

Pretty Girls Will Be Seen in
Frontal Attack on That
Theatre.

SMILES WIN AUDIENCE

Others in "The Unknown
Woman" Have No Chance to Distinguish Themselves.

"The Unknown Woman"—At Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

Willard Mack said after the third act of "The Unknown Woman," in which A. H. Woods presented Marjorie Rambeau last night, that the piece had been taken from the Jewish by the Irish, but that there was no reason why the Irish should claim all the credit for the event of the evening. It would not be possible for the audience to decide without knowing what was Irish and what was Jewish just where the glory lies. But it looked, when the third act had come to an end, as if honors were easy. But there also was the feeling that there were no grounds for any loud boasting from either race.

Miss Rambeau blooming in rather full bloom, indeed is still blond and in her way beautiful to look at. She is smiling and brilliant to the eye, but her play is based on a model popular some years ago and is turgidly melodramatic. This style was indeed added to the dramatic category when the American playwright suddenly saw his duty to correlate the native drama to life. Then the captain of industry succeeded the artist as lover, the candidate for Governor—gosh, how many candidates for that gubernatorial post we have met across the footlights—also took on sentimental stature and altogether supplanted the indifferent and more or less ex-patriated millionaire as the hero of the street and storm of political struggle. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Characters in the Play.

All the personnel of this type of stage romance wandered about the boards of Maxine Elliott's Theatre last night. The overwhelmingly ambitious politician who landed the Governorship and neglected the loving wife who had lost her baby but still had a soft spot in her heart for the young neglected Attorney. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Her Smile Wins Audience.

Miss Rambeau could not, of course, be in such surroundings the ray of burning sunshine that she resembled. She had to be "emotional" and dramatic when she is most charming in her lighter moods. Experience of her talents seems to show that she is at her best either in the portrayal of strongly marked roles or in the lighter phases of the drama. She had, of course, to speak the

DIED.

BURT.—On Saturday, November 9, 1919, in the seventieth year of his age, George Hamilton Burt, beloved father of George Frederick Burt.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 149 West 114th street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

DENMAN.—At Elizabeth, N. J., November 8, 1919, Edw. James Denman, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Denman, aged 44 years.

Funeral services at his late residence, 104 Railway avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., Tuesday evening, November 11, 3 o'clock.

DIETRICH.—Sarah Hill, beloved wife of Charles F. Dietrich, suddenly, at Sadler's Hospital, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Services private at convenience of family.

KLAW.—Aron, on November 10, Services at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, Tuesday, 8 P. M.

OSTBERG.—Caroline, mother of Harold C. Hansen, in her eightieth year. Funeral services 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from 2108 Albemarle terrace, Brooklyn.

PEYSEL.—Fanny C., beloved daughter of the late Frederick M. and Molly Peyser, at the Lenox Hill Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral private at her late residence, 137 West Seventy-first street.

ROGERS.—Richard A. F., on November 7, 1919, at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, and sixty-sixth street.

In Memoriam.

BRATLEY.—To the cherished memory of Mary Elizabeth Bratley, who passed away November 11, 1919, to leave her husband, John Bratley, who had entered into the higher life July 23, the same year.

You are all meet at the Master's feet. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

R. B. K. Utica, N. Y.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS.

"CAMPBELL SERVICE" IS NOT CONFINED TO NEW YORK CITY.

A telephone call will bring our representative to you wherever you may be, with the least possible delay.

We have personal representatives almost everywhere.

Call "Columbus 8200" Any Hour, Day or Night.

FRANK E. CAMPBELL

"THE FUNERAL CHURCH"

Broadway at 60th St. 23rd Street at 8th Ave.

Flowers for all occasions. Artistic Funeral Designs our Specialty.

MUSICAL COMEDIES PALACE OFFERING

Pretty Girls Will Be Seen in
Frontal Attack on That
Theatre.

SMILES WIN AUDIENCE

Others in "The Unknown
Woman" Have No Chance to Distinguish Themselves.

"The Unknown Woman"—At Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

Willard Mack said after the third act of "The Unknown Woman," in which A. H. Woods presented Marjorie Rambeau last night, that the piece had been taken from the Jewish by the Irish, but that there was no reason why the Irish should claim all the credit for the event of the evening. It would not be possible for the audience to decide without knowing what was Irish and what was Jewish just where the glory lies. But it looked, when the third act had come to an end, as if honors were easy. But there also was the feeling that there were no grounds for any loud boasting from either race.

Miss Rambeau blooming in rather full bloom, indeed is still blond and in her way beautiful to look at. She is smiling and brilliant to the eye, but her play is based on a model popular some years ago and is turgidly melodramatic. This style was indeed added to the dramatic category when the American playwright suddenly saw his duty to correlate the native drama to life. Then the captain of industry succeeded the artist as lover, the candidate for Governor—gosh, how many candidates for that gubernatorial post we have met across the footlights—also took on sentimental stature and altogether supplanted the indifferent and more or less ex-patriated millionaire as the hero of the street and storm of political struggle. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Characters in the Play.

All the personnel of this type of stage romance wandered about the boards of Maxine Elliott's Theatre last night. The overwhelmingly ambitious politician who landed the Governorship and neglected the loving wife who had lost her baby but still had a soft spot in her heart for the young neglected Attorney. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Her Smile Wins Audience.

Miss Rambeau could not, of course, be in such surroundings the ray of burning sunshine that she resembled. She had to be "emotional" and dramatic when she is most charming in her lighter moods. Experience of her talents seems to show that she is at her best either in the portrayal of strongly marked roles or in the lighter phases of the drama. She had, of course, to speak the

DIED.

BURT.—On Saturday, November 9, 1919, in the seventieth year of his age, George Hamilton Burt, beloved father of George Frederick Burt.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 149 West 114th street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

DENMAN.—At Elizabeth, N. J., November 8, 1919, Edw. James Denman, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Denman, aged 44 years.

Funeral services at his late residence, 104 Railway avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., Tuesday evening, November 11, 3 o'clock.

DIETRICH.—Sarah Hill, beloved wife of Charles F. Dietrich, suddenly, at Sadler's Hospital, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Services private at convenience of family.

KLAW.—Aron, on November 10, Services at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, Tuesday, 8 P. M.

OSTBERG.—Caroline, mother of Harold C. Hansen, in her eightieth year. Funeral services 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from 2108 Albemarle terrace, Brooklyn.

PEYSEL.—Fanny C., beloved daughter of the late Frederick M. and Molly Peyser, at the Lenox Hill Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral private at her late residence, 137 West Seventy-first street.

ROGERS.—Richard A. F., on November 7, 1919, at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, and sixty-sixth street.

In Memoriam.

BRATLEY.—To the cherished memory of Mary Elizabeth Bratley, who passed away November 11, 1919, to leave her husband, John Bratley, who had entered into the higher life July 23, the same year.

You are all meet at the Master's feet. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

R. B. K. Utica, N. Y.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS.

"CAMPBELL SERVICE" IS NOT CONFINED TO NEW YORK CITY.

A telephone call will bring our representative to you wherever you may be, with the least possible delay.

We have personal representatives almost everywhere.

Call "Columbus 8200" Any Hour, Day or Night.

FRANK E. CAMPBELL

"THE FUNERAL CHURCH"

Broadway at 60th St. 23rd Street at 8th Ave.

Flowers for all occasions. Artistic Funeral Designs our Specialty.

MUSICAL COMEDIES PALACE OFFERING

Pretty Girls Will Be Seen in
Frontal Attack on That
Theatre.

SMILES WIN AUDIENCE

Others in "The Unknown
Woman" Have No Chance to Distinguish Themselves.

"The Unknown Woman"—At Maxine
Elliott's Theatre.

Willard Mack said after the third act of "The Unknown Woman," in which A. H. Woods presented Marjorie Rambeau last night, that the piece had been taken from the Jewish by the Irish, but that there was no reason why the Irish should claim all the credit for the event of the evening. It would not be possible for the audience to decide without knowing what was Irish and what was Jewish just where the glory lies. But it looked, when the third act had come to an end, as if honors were easy. But there also was the feeling that there were no grounds for any loud boasting from either race.

Miss Rambeau blooming in rather full bloom, indeed is still blond and in her way beautiful to look at. She is smiling and brilliant to the eye, but her play is based on a model popular some years ago and is turgidly melodramatic. This style was indeed added to the dramatic category when the American playwright suddenly saw his duty to correlate the native drama to life. Then the captain of industry succeeded the artist as lover, the candidate for Governor—gosh, how many candidates for that gubernatorial post we have met across the footlights—also took on sentimental stature and altogether supplanted the indifferent and more or less ex-patriated millionaire as the hero of the street and storm of political struggle. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Characters in the Play.

All the personnel of this type of stage romance wandered about the boards of Maxine Elliott's Theatre last night. The overwhelmingly ambitious politician who landed the Governorship and neglected the loving wife who had lost her baby but still had a soft spot in her heart for the young neglected Attorney. So the heroine—not infrequently the same neglected wife of an ambitious husband that we saw last night—found herself surrounded with heads of corporations, party leaders, potential Senators, and as she has been known to call them herself, "men who did things."

Her Smile Wins Audience.

Miss Rambeau could not, of course, be in such surroundings the ray of burning sunshine that she resembled. She had to be "emotional" and dramatic when she is most charming in her lighter moods. Experience of her talents seems to show that she is at her best either in the portrayal of strongly marked roles or in the lighter phases of the drama. She had, of course, to speak the

DIED.

BURT.—On Saturday, November 9, 1919, in the seventieth year of his age, George Hamilton Burt, beloved father of George Frederick Burt.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, 149 West 114th street, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment private.

DENMAN.—At Elizabeth, N. J., November 8, 1919, Edw. James Denman, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Denman, aged 44 years.

Funeral services at his late residence, 104 Railway avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., Tuesday evening, November 11, 3 o'clock.

DIETRICH.—Sarah Hill, beloved wife of Charles F. Dietrich, suddenly, at Sadler's Hospital, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Services private at convenience of family.

KLAW.—Aron, on November 10, Services at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, Tuesday, 8 P. M.

OSTBERG.—Caroline, mother of Harold C. Hansen, in her eightieth year. Funeral services 3 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from 2108 Albemarle terrace, Brooklyn.

PEYSEL.—Fanny C., beloved daughter of the late Frederick M. and Molly Peyser, at the Lenox Hill Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral private at her late residence, 137 West Seventy-first street.

ROGERS.—Richard A. F., on November 7, 1919, at the funeral home, 100 West 114th street, and sixty-sixth street.

In Memoriam.

BRATLEY.—To the cherished memory of Mary Elizabeth Bratley, who passed away November 11, 1919, to leave her husband, John Bratley, who had entered into the higher life July 23, the same year.

You are all meet at the Master's feet. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

R. B. K. Utica, N. Y.

UNDERTAKERS.

UNDERTAKERS.

"CAMPBELL SERVICE" IS NOT CONFINED TO NEW YORK CITY.

A telephone call will bring our representative to you wherever you may be, with the least possible delay.

We have personal representatives almost everywhere.

Call "Columbus 8200" Any Hour, Day or Night.

FRANK E. CAMPBELL

"THE FUNERAL CHURCH"

Broadway at 60th St. 23rd